

Private School Education Doesn't Have To Be Expensive To Be Effective

As a faith-based community, it is the charge of St. John's Lutheran School in Winston-Salem to help students realize their God-given potential in the classroom, in the community, in athletics and in the arts. Most students become well-rounded leaders who move onto high school and beyond with confidence and critical-thinking skills supporting their efforts. But with its new pricing structure, more families can now enjoy an exemplary educational experience for less!

Developing Minds. Serving Communities. Growing In Faith.

St. John's Mission

The mission of St. John's Lutheran School is to provide a Christian education that:

- Creates life-long learners by helping students discover their God-given potential.
- Works to develop integrity of character and strength of body.
- Generates service opportunities that puts faith into action.

"We are a private Christian school serving children in preschool, kindergarten, elementary school and middle school," says Tom Baldwin, Director of Admissions and Community Relations.

St. John's Lutheran School features:

- Student-focused, small class size teaching.
- A safe, Christian learning environment.
- A long-standing reputation for strong academics.
- A service-oriented approach to learning and critical thinking.
- Approachable and accessible staff and educators.

"St. John's does a great job of educating students, but what makes us unique is our ability to engage learners, foster creativity, develop paths to critical thinking and character, and create student leaders that are caring and confident," Mr. Baldwin says. "And our new pricing structure helps make the option of going to a private school easier for more families."

Learning Leadership by Serving Others

Whether it is teaching younger students about the importance of recycling or helping older students create community service projects in neighborhoods, St. John's students are also empowered to serve. As a result, they develop skills to lead projects that help them grow as individuals, while bettering communities throughout Winston-Salem.

"We work to develop and evolve a number of community service options that engages and empowers students at all grade levels to undertake service projects in school, in their neighborhoods, or wherever the paths to serving lead them," Mr. Baldwin says. "Projects may include environmental stewardship, or helping the homeless, the elderly, and so on."

To review our tuition go to StJohnsFalcons.org/tuition
Call (336) 725-1651 today to schedule your tour.

St. John's
Lutheran School

Developing Minds.
Serving Communities.
Growing In Faith.

Preschool, Kindergarten, Grade School & Middle School

Call Today (336) 725-1651

www.StJohnsFalcons.org • 2415 Silas Creek Parkway, Winston-Salem